What might be needed in light of Radical Hospitality?

- We talked about a particular situation where there is a need for hospitality and we considered Joan of Arc and how important imagination is in solving problems. Using creativity and imagination will come into play a great deal. That will be needed as we address local as well as the large social justice needs.

- Yes – everyone at this table is very concerned with the really, truly poor. Let’s be a little more radical in how we help those in poverty.

- In our conversation, we looked at where radical hospitality is missing in our world and where it is present. Where there are big tragedies in our world you see people coming forward all over; that is also the piece that is missing in our world. How does that relate to us as Presentation Sisters - what can we do on an everyday basis and not wait for tragedy to hit? What are we being called to in light of our charism? Perhaps taking some time to set goals for our future. How are we each individually being called to do that?

- What seems to be making an impact is when we have bodies there to make a statement. Maybe as we look at some of these issues our work would be to be physically present and encourage others to be present as well.

- I was struck by the comment that we as religious tend to see a lot of break-downs but how often do we see the break-throughs and acknowledge them?
